HAPPY 240TH BIRTHDAY ARMY!!

The Continental Army, predecessor to our modern US Army, was founded on June 14, 1775. Before then, the colonies only had independent militias. The Continental Congress realized that a common Army was needed when hostilities broke out with the British, eventually escalating into what we now know as the American Revolutionary War. It soon recognized that this newly formed Army, some 30-thousand strong, required a sound leader. The next day, George Washington was appointed the first Commander-in-Chief. Source: army.mil
